FORTY-EIGHTH CONGRESS.

The Senate.

Washington, Feb. 26 -Mr. Hale, from the Committee on Appropriatsons, reported, with amendments, the regular annual Naval Appropriation bill, and said he would endeavor to call up the bill to-morrow.

The Senate passed the House bill to provide a fire-proof building to contain the records of the Medical Museum of the army. Consideration of the Legislative bill was then resumed. All the amendments yesterday proposed by Senators to increase the number annual clerks to Senste committees were voted

By a vote of 33 year to 13 nays, the Smate agreed to the committee amendment to strike out the House section to provide for a new apportionment and election in the territory of Wyoming. The bill was then read a third time and passed, substantially as reported from the Senate Committee on Appro priations.

The Silver bill was then taken up.

Mr. Sherman said he was willing to vote for the bill as it came from the Senate Cammittee. Two questions were involved in it: First, shall the trade dollar be redeemed at par of gold? and second, whether the coin-sge of the silver dollar should be disconno obligation, whether of honor, law or public policy to give the trade dollar any preference over silver bullion purchased in open market. These dollars, like silver bars, had been used for bullion purposes and for trade only, not for circulation. After reciting the history of the trade dollar, Mr. Sherman showed that the bill taking away its legal tender quality had been passed without objection being raised.

Mr. McPherson asked why the Government should have taken away the legal tender for its retirement?

Mr. Sherman said that to have talked of providing for the retirement of the trade dollar when the law was passed taking away dollar more than United States money, Perhaps it would have been better if an arrangement had at that time been made permitting holders of the dollars to convert them into greenbacks, but it would have been simply considered ludicrons and ridiculous. Sherman then entered into a long statement as to the effect of keeping up the comage of silver, etc.

Mr. Beck read from the report of ex-Secretary Folger to controvert the position assumed by Sherman on the trade dollar. As to the suspension of silver coinage Mr. Beck said: "We shoud not in the last hours of this Congress attempt to strike down silver, neither should we give any President the power, in his discretion, to strike down the coin of the country. He (Beck) would give that power to no President, no matter how much confidence he might have in him. He would as lief give the President the right to declare war. He was glad to be able to esy there was no danger that any President would get such power, for elsewhere in a body that had power. An attempt had been made this very day to give a President such power, and it had miserably failed. Mr. Hill maintained that the time when gold would be in demand for export was indefinitely remote. Silver was to-day the exclusive money of a large majority of the people of the world. Mr. Hill criticised the position of Mesers. Sherman, Morrill and Bayard on the silver question; also, the attitude of the Finance Committee of the Senate.

Mr. Hill continued at great length, and was followed by Mr. Coke, whose speech closed the silver debate for the day, and without action the matter went over. Considerable confusion then occurred, and sayeral Senators sought recognition.

Mr. Aldrich, however, succeeded, and called up the bill relating to titles to real hardly been placed before the Senate when | building. motions to adjourn and to go into executive session and to call up other bills were made in confusing rapidity.

After some other matters had been talked of for a while the Senate went into execulive session and soen after adjourned.

The House.

A concurrent resolution was agreed to tendering the thanks of Congress to Colonel Casey, of the Corps of Engineers, and his assistants and workingmen for the admirable manner in which he and they performed their respective duties in the completion monument to the name fame of Washington. Afterward, on motion of Mr. Thomas, the vote was reconsidered and the resolution | els, etc., to the University of Michigan, haid on the table, because its effect would be to extend the period during which Colonel Casey would be on the active list ten years. port on the Army Appropriation bill. An agreement was reported on all amendments

Randall then said: "Recognizing proposition, I therefore assume myself the responsibility (believing that the members of the Appropriation Committee, if an opportunity were offered, would unan imously sustain me in the position) of moving to suspend rules in the manner stated in the reso-or as to whether there was any prospect that a deliar of the money would ever come back to the Treasury. After a long discussion. Mr. Randall said that in season and out of season he had informed the House that unless the Appropriation Committee had the right of way there was danger of an extra session, and repeatedly had the committee been voted down. It was manifest if this bill was to be passed in time to become a law before the 4th of March, it must be passed in the way he proposed. Randall's motion was then agreed to, and the two hours' debate allowed under it was be-

An Intendiary Fire. Wellsburg, W. Va., Feb. 26 .- At 3 o'clock this morning a fire broke out in an old frame tenement, owned by William Tucker, and occupied as a millinery store and dwelling, destroying a large brick adjoining on the south, and on the north side, the saddlery of Hedges and F. Hall's new skating rink, the furniture store of George McCleary, the pool room of E. Hall and the double dwelling, belonging to Dare Bros. It is supposed to have been the work of an incendiary, as there was no one in the building where the fire originated. There is a bitter feeling against the Natural Gas Company, the terrible ex plosion of last week and many persons feel that the end has not come. It has been discovered since the fire that all the valves were closed in the house where the fire started, tinued in August, 1836? He said there was I which is conclusive evidence that it was the work of an incendiary. Loss, $20,000.

Detroit Times Suspended.

DETROIT, Feb. 26.-The Times, an afternoon daily, suspended to-day owing to a lack of funds and failure in the payment of promised money. It glories in the fact that it "scoops" the other Detroit papers in the announcement of its suspension. In less than three months, while it has been runquality of the trade dollar without provision | ning as an afternoon paper, its circulation has trebled, reaching 11,000. The announcement is headed: "Dead, 'tis done. It's race is run. The Times has ordered a coffin for one. A gallant fight, a sore defeat, but its legal tender quality, would have been death alone. The Times could boast its folly, because that dollar was, at the hosts of friends. It's left to them to sing its time, worth thirteen cents on the funeral requiem." The plant will probably be bought and a paper started by a stock company.

Experiments in Feeding.

The Highland Agricultural Society has isthe significance of the vote just taken, and | sued a report of two experiments in relation knowing the issue was distinctly made as I to ensilage, which have been carried out unagainst the silver clause, and being aware | der its directions. On February 14 six bul-that the majority has declared against that locks, to be fed on turnips and oat straw, weighed an average of 7 hundredweight. quarter, 10% pounds each, and five to be fed on silage weighed an average of 7 hundredweight, 1 quarter, 18 2 5 pounds each. When turned out to grass on May 12, the turnipfed lot averaged 8 hundredweight, 1 quarter. lution, with everything connected with 2½ pounds each, and the silege-fed lot 8 coinage eliminated both from the bill and bundredweight, 2 quarters, 12 pounds each. On June 17 they averaged 8 hundredweight, Mr. Randall then moved to suspend the 2 quarters, 8 pounds, and 8 hundredweight, ules so as to take up the Sundry Civil bill 3 quarters, 6 pounds, respectively, the and consider for one hour the clause relating | silage fed animals being still ahead. GEMS THAT GAMBLERS WEAR.

Diamond-Bedecked Sports-Why Ivory Speculators Invest Their Cash in Stones. [New York World.]

"Gamblers are among the best customers we have," said a weil-known diamond broker yesterday. "They buy batter stones than most people, and pay better prices. You see," he continued, "they buy only when flush, and at such times a thoroughbred speculator in ivories will not stop at a few hundred dollars."

"Why is it that gamblers are so fond of diamonds?" "Well, there are many reasons why gamblers buy diamonds," was the response. "You see," he continued, "whenever a man feels like a four-time winner he puts what money he can into good stones. Insse he knows have a permanent value, and can be turned into ready cash with greater facility than any other of his chattels. If he puts his money into real estate and wishes to dispose of the latter, days must elapse before a sale can be made and the title searched. Real estate a so depreciates on a forced sale. Horses and carriages are liable to injury and a depreciation in value, but with diamonds it is different Should a man make a loser playing bank he can obtain ready cash at a few hours' notice by selling or 'scaking' his gems. It is the work of a few minutes to test a stone, and the 'gam.' soon has money in his pocket. "Then, too, it must be remembered, the class of men of which we speak generally bave no settled habitation. They migrate from place to place. In moving about they can carry their diamonds, and ase thus sendy for any emergency. The could not carry houses and lots. Then, again, they sre, as a rule, men who like to appear wealthy, and diamonds, it must be contessed, do give a man the appearance of filmer ce.

"Who that you know has the most valua-ble diamonds" was asked of Mr. E. M. Gattle, who was seen in his office under the Coleman House "I think that Sheedy has," was the reply, "Mr. Sheedy has a great deal of money inveited in diamonds, many of which are large and remarkable for their parity. Some time sgo be bought two and had them set in gold bands for bracelets for his wife. Each stone weighed four and one-half carats, and the pair cost over $5,000. He also purchased a pair of solitair ear-rings for Mrs. Sheady that cost $1 500. He has a five and one eighth carat stone that he values at $7,500. Gas Abel has a fine large stone set in a ring that is valued at more than $1,000. Davy Johnson has one weighing nearly two carats in a ring in a gypsy setting. Larry O'Brien has a cluster scarf-pin worth $800 and a ring valued at the same. Matt Corbitt, who went to New Orleans with Pat Sheedy, wears $3,000 worth of first-water gems. Al Smith has several very fine dicmonds. Ned Jones wears a handsom old mine stone in a heavy gold ring. Henry Morrison has an odd and a scarf-pin that always secures Bud a position as hotel clerk when his usual vocation is dull. Sam Emery and George Brotherton run over from Philadelphia occasionally, and sometimes lend the railroad companies their scarf-pins for locomotive headlights. Johnnie Condon leads Chicago sports in the diamond line. Johnnie is worth $1,000 000, and has many thousands invested in diamonds, as has also "Parson" Davis.

Ridge Levien has a large diamond set in a ring, and it never fails to attract attention. Little Charles Davis sports a fine cluster scarf-pin, as does Peter Delacey. The later has also a handsome diamond ring. Pete Downey has two gems of the purest rays serene, and John Daly wears a handsome solitaire scarf-pin.

"Look at these," and Mr. Gattle drew from a secret pocket a package of unset diamonds ranking in size from half a carat to a carat and a half. "These will not be sold for some time. The action of the authorities in suppressing gambling has had a bad effect on business of all kinds in this part of the city. The boys have little cash to spare for investment, and, indeed, many are leaving this city for other points. Those who remain are dabbling in grain and eke out an existence. All hands are awaiting the opening of the racing season, and then the lucky once will probably buy more diamonds."

Management of colts.

It was formerly claimed by some that feeding oats to young colts ruined their feet, but that idea has exploded. There is much less danger of injury to the feet than the stomachs from overfeeding, and as a rule more stomachs suffer for the want of gain than from evereating. The quantity of grain that can be profitably fed to a weanling by farmers in the country where hay is worth only from $10 to $12 per ton, and where the colt must depend solely upon pasturage from May till November, and perhaps later, can not be determined by the quantity fed by those breeders whose colts are entered to trot at two and three years of age, and will bave plenty of exercise during the winter as well as extra feed during the summer months. Possibly from two to three quarts of oats daily, with half that quantity of wheat bran and all the choice early cut hay it will eat, will prove about as much as country farmers can profitably feed under ordinsry circumstances. If the colt gets too much grain or concentrated food during the first winter, its stomach will not be properly distended, and when turned to grass in the spring, it can not eat enough to keep it in a thrifty condition. Hence its growth is checked at a period when it is important that CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Feb. 26. - Frank | it should be increased. The feet of colts sufof a rasp than from excessive feeding of grain. The fact of every colt should be examined and trimmed at least once a month, so as to keep all the toes properly shortened, thus preventing undue strain to the tendons, which in time is liable to result in serious lameness. The bottoms of the feet should also be rasped, so as to be kept perfectly level. It requires some knowledge of the anatomy of the toot to do this properly, yet every farmer by examining can see when one side of the foot is becoming twisted out of shape, and by exercising a little ingenuity can, with a few properly applied strokes of the rasp, prevent defects, which, if not arrested, are sure to detract from the value of the animal when ready for the market. Most country colts suffer more from the want of a comfortable bed at night than from a lack of feed.
